1. A partial record [redacted] of the Chinese Communist Army (CCA), which covers the period from 1 to 31 July 1950, shows that the following personnel and supplies have been sent to North Korea:
  - a. Two signal companies were sent by the Telecommunications Administration; 118 medical personnel, including 5 Japanese doctors, were sent by the Health Department; and 84 persons were sent by the Central Political Department for prisoner of war interrogation teams.
  - b. Among the supplies sent were 500,000 catties of food; 40,000 catties of edible oil; 160 tons of medical supplies, including 60,000 first aid packets; 12,000 pairs of rubber shoes; 600 sets of automobile tires; and an unknown quantity of communications equipment.
2. Chinese Communist participation in the Korean war is under a special organ established by the Chinese Communist Central Committee. The organ includes representatives of the United Front Department of the Chinese Communist Party, the Government Finance and Economic Committee and the SSC of the CCA Headquarters, as well as other government officials.
